Outbreak of Legionnaires' Disease at San Quentin: San Rafael, Marin County

On 08/27/15 at 1748 hours, San Quentin's Senior Emergency Management Coordinator (Sr. EMC) notified the Warning Center that an emergency procurement of drinking water will be required due to one confirmed case of Legionnaires' and other inmates showing signs of possible infection.

- Marin County's Public Health Officer met with the San Quentin officials and a "do not drink or bathe" order was enforced at the facility; however, alternate water sources were procured, i.e. bottled water.
- The Cal OES Coastal Region Duty Officer (CDO) furnished the current bulk water hauler list to San Quentin's Sr. EMC.
- San Quentin is currently investigating the possible source of the contamination.
- Water is shut off to the prison and a do not drink/bathe order, has been issued. The prison resumed the use of plumbed toilets inside the facility's housing units, and monitored use of water for cooking as of Friday afternoon. Secondary water sources such as bottled water and water tanks will continue to be used for consumption until it is deemed safe to resume normal water use.
- Inmates are currently being served boxed meals to avoid exposure to steam and mist during cooking operations.
- The prison is planning on needing assistance for approximately 2 weeks, and there are no plans to evacuate prisoners or use laundry trailers.
- San Quentin is a reception center for new inmates to the California prison system. Intake has been temporarily halted as the investigation continues.
- All inmate visiting and volunteer programs have been halted as the investigation continues.
- Per CDO as of 0823 hours on 09/01/15, CDCR issued an updated Press Release. Per the Press Release:
  - There are six confirmed cases of inmates with Legionnaires' which are all being treated at SQ's on-site medical unit. Five inmates are in outside area hospitals being treated for pneumonia-like symptoms but none are confirmed to have Legionnaires'.
  - There are 73 inmates under observation for respiratory illness. They have not been diagnosed with Legionnaires' and are being treated at SQ's on-site medical unit.
  - There are no confirmed cases of staff with Legionnaires'.
  - The Cal OES CDO worked with Marin County OES and DSS Mass Care and Shelter, who provided another local Mobile Kitchen Unit (MKU) at the San Quentin Command Post.

CDO continues to work with San Quentin's staff on any resource requests and/or additional assistance.

SITUATION SUMMARY

Measles Exposure Warning, City of Berkeley, Alameda County

A test confirmed that a UC Berkeley student was diagnosed with measles Monday, 08/31/2015, after potentially exposing the public to the highly infectious disease.

- The student may have exposed others to the disease between Aug. 24th and Aug. 29th. The student spent time on campus, in the community and rode on a AC Transit bus before developing a rash.
- The city's Public Health Department is working with the University to alert and assess anyone who was exposed to the ill student.
- Measles symptoms can develop between 7 – 21 days after being exposed to the virus. The airborne measles virus can remain in the air for up to two hours. Anyone exposed to the measles may develop a fever and a facial rash and should contact their doctor.
- Update 09/02/15 at 0802 Hours: Berkeley health officials have issued a warning after a UC Berkeley student tested positive for measles after riding public transportation away from the school. The student took a bus from the UC Berkeley campus to Contra Costa County. Officials have tested those who came into close contact with the patient to see if they are immune and protected. An email was sent to the entire campus on 09/01/15 informing everyone about this case.

Weather of Concern

- Another round of winds is expected, particularly for the Tahoe and Donner areas. Wind gusts may be around 45 mph. Choppy lake conditions, fire weather concerns, and blowing dust are possible.
- Freezing temperatures in the Sierra's are possible going into Labor Day weekend with impacts likely for gardeners, campers, and for individuals attending Burning Man. The coldest Sierra valleys could be in the mid to upper 20s with western Nevada valleys in the mid 30s. If you plan on being outdoors this weekend overnight prepare for potential of freezing conditions.

El Niño Outlook for California

The National Weather Service (NWS) and the Department of Water Resources (DWR) have provided a brief video describing the El Niño weather expected later in the season and what it could mean for California.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

A cool low pressure trough will deepen southward from the Pacific Northwest into Northern California over the next three days, affecting all of Northern California to some degree, with the greatest effects in the north and eastern portions of the Area. Look for a cooling trend to start today, lasting three days in Northern California and possibly four days in Southern California. Humidity will be coming up generally 3-10% in the south and 10-25% in the north by Friday, with continued very good relative humidity recovery on lower slopes, and improving recovery over the higher terrain. Gradient winds from mainly the southwest will be picking up quickly near the Cascade/Sierra ranges and eastward by midday today, with the strongest afternoon gusts 32-40 mph. Multiple disturbances will rotate around the south end of the deepening trough/ low, and these will bring 2-3 shots of generally light shower activity to far Northern California, with the initial spotty light showers in the far north later today or tonight. Eventually, largest totals look like they'll end up in Northeastern California, where there will be greater chance of some moderate showers, and also the greatest chance of a few wet thunderstorms. The low pressure trough moves east of Northern California late Saturday and Sunday, and then slowly gains strength next week. This will bring about sunnier skies, along with warming and drying that reaches back to, or slightly exceeds, early September norms. Sunday through at least Tuesday will bring widespread coverage of generally light northeast breezes in a.m. hours, with some moderate gusts in the Sacramento Valley foothills and southwestward.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

A series of troughs will continue the pattern of widespread marine layer stratus along the coast with breezy conditions further inland through the end of the week. A very weak trough will pass to our north this afternoon which will cause south and southwest winds to increase to 15-25 mph with gusts to 35 mph in and near the deserts. The Owens Valley may see some south winds to 30 mph throughout the day. Temperatures will be a bit cooler today with highs in the 70s along the coast, upper 80s in the valleys to 105 degrees in the lower deserts. Minimum relative humidity will drop into the teens this afternoon above 7,000 feet. A weak upper low stalled off the coast will continue to pull significant mid and high clouds into Southern California and only limited clearing may occur this afternoon. Temperatures will cool off a degree or two each day through Friday with widespread marine layer stratus reaching further up the coastal slopes. The winds will be stronger Friday into Saturday morning as a stronger trough moves into the Northern Rockies. Gusty winds will be possible over Central California, especially over the Sierras eastward into Mono County where some gusts to 40 mph can be expected on the east side of the Crest. Other areas such as the Antelope Valley, Banning Pass and the Kern County Mountains will see winds of 20-30 mph Thursday and Friday afternoon. The trough will be east of the area Sunday and a weak offshore gradient will cause temperatures to leap 5-8 degrees Sunday. Winds are expected to be light Sunday and Monday and temperatures should climb to near normal readings by Labor Day. No thunderstorms are expected through the period.
